

THEY HAD A JOLLY TIME.

When Henry Spent the Night With His Friend William.

My Dear Aunt—I had Henry for breakfast several days ago when he staid all night on account of his pance getting soaked in the rain so he could not go home on account of not being able to get to bed and so he went to bed with his pance by the kitchen stove.

It was a hard rain and Henry would have been soaked clean through if he had anything on under his pance which he did not as a boy does not wear much clothes in the summertime.

A short and pance are about all he needs, but if anything happens to either one of those about all he can do is go to bed or borro some until he is dried out.

It was a great night for me and Henry with his pance was being dried out. After the lights were all put out Henry and me crawled under the bed and lit a candle and we read the Lives of the Pances Heroes until we both fell asleep under the bed and the candle fell over and burnt a hole in the carpet.

Henry was waked up by the smell before it was serious and we managed to get the fire out before much damage was done. The hole in the carpet is about a foot across and Henry and me moved the bed a little so as to cover it better. The smell of it lasted nearly all night and Henry said he bet our pance would get dried out quick if they knew who did it. But it will probably not be found out till they move the bed to sweep clean under which may take a long time.

Henry and me were thinking last night that it is just about six months now since his dog Tige died and you sent us the money to go to the picture show.

Henry never forgot Tige and he seems to be just as much dead now as he was the day of the funeral. From "The Letters of William Green," by J. W. Foley, in Saturday Evening Post.

Take Your Choice.

If you want to be rich, give! If you want to be poor, grasp! If you want abundance, scatter! If you want to be needy, hoard.—Selected.

Follows Instructions.

The father of a small family tells us this one:

"My wife instructed our little boy when he was invited out to lunch the other day that when he was asked to have a second helping of cake he should refuse. 'You must say, 'No, I thank you, I've had enough,' said she. 'And don't you forget it.'"

"He didn't. When asked if he'd have some more cake he said, 'No, I thank you, I've had enough, and don't you forget it!'"

They Both Knew.

When the war ended Thomas B. Reed went to California with a vague plan of settling in that new country. He used to tell with intense delight of his examination for admission to the bar of California. A young southerner came before the judge for examination at the same time. The judge asked the southerner if the legal tender acts were constitutional, and the young man answered without a moment's hesitation, "No." Then the judge turned to Reed and asked him the same question. Mr. Reed with equal promptness answered, "Yes."

"Very well," said the judge, "you are both admitted. Two men who can answer that question without hesitation ought to be admitted to any bar."

He Meant Well.

William Farrum tells a good one about an incident which happened while he was still on the stage.

"I was playing in a town several years ago, when an earthquake shock came. The shock was felt during the last act of the show. The actor who was on the stage at the time saw every one arise, and he got so excited that he stepped to the footlights, thinking that a fire was the cause of the confusion, and shouted:

"There's no danger, folks. Just keep seated. We've got it under control. We've got it under control."

Wonderful Flash.

The wonderful freaks and pranks of lightning were being described minutely in the smoking room of the Chicago Athletic Club.

A proker described the most remarkable freak of all—namely, the entry of a flash of forked lightning into a nursery, where it burned all the hair off a baby's head without hurting the child in the least.

George Ate Coughed.

"A remarkable freak of lightning down Brook way," he said, "was called to my attention one day. It seems a flash of blue forked lightning snaked its way into a barber shop, gave a customer a hair shave and then rang up the proper amount on the cash register."

CUPID AND COLOR.

What Happened Just Because Dinah Did Not Wear Black.

Mrs. Blank had in her employ a colored maid who belonged to a "funeral club," which blinds all its members to accept every funeral of a member upon receipt of notification. One morning Dinah asked for time that afternoon to attend a funeral, and Mrs. Blank, knowing that Dinah would have to pay a fine if she did not attend, gave reluctant consent.

At the appointed hour Dinah's mistress saw her come down the stairs, ready to go out. To Mrs. Blank's horror, Dinah was dressed in a bright scarlet dress with a large scarlet willow plume on her hat and a red parasol in her hand.

"Why, Dinah, I thought you were going to a funeral," said Mrs. Blank.

"Yes, I'm going to the funeral," said Dinah.

"But you ought not to wear red to a funeral," said Mrs. Blank. "You ought to be dressed quietly in a dark dress!" Dinah poked the toe of her shoe with her parasol and meditated a moment and then said: "Well, I reckon I won't go back and change now. I'll just wear this."

Some three weeks after this Dinah approached her mistress and told her that she was going to leave because she was going to be married. Mrs. Blank expressed her astonishment, saying that she didn't know Dinah, even had an admirer. Dinah simpered and twisted the corner of her apron and said:

"No, I didn't have one until just lately. Does you remember that funeral I went to one time when I wore my red dress? Well, missus, dat shade of red done kitched de eye of de widower."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Patience.

When I think of it I perceive that Patience is our fairy godmother, who brings us our harvests in the long result.—George Meredith.

Easily Explained.

Brutus, the few pounds of horse-flesh owned by Wotanass, having shied at a camel, sat down in an undignified manner on the king's highway and thereby contracted a bad bruise on one of his legs, much to his master's dismay and annoyance. The other morning Wotanass was taking the gallant animal with its clumsily bandaged leg out for its usual round the gas works when a friend, noticing its injury, inquired the cause. The master of the gallant horse was irritable; therefore it is not surprising that he answered in this manner:

"JUST TIED A KNOT IN IT."

"Oh, he's all right, old chap. One leg was longer than the other, so I just tied a knot in it!"—London Ideas.

Too Thin.

Mildred had just had her first dip in the ocean.

"How did you like it, dear?" asked her mother as she fastened up the little six-year-old's frock.

Mildred glared angrily at the sparkling sea.

"I didn't like it at all, mother," she replied coldly. "I sat on a wave, and I went through."—Youth's Companion.

Practical Diplomacy.

"Papa," inquired a young hopeful of some seven summers, as he looked up from a book he was reading, "there's a word here which puzzles me—'diplomacy.'"

"Diplomacy, my son," and the old man smiled paternally as he said it, "means this: Doing or saying precisely the right thing at precisely the right time."

"Ah!" retorted the young hopeful, "then I guess I exercised diplomacy last night."

"How, my boy?" inquired the fond parent.

"Why, I rolled Johnny over into my place, just before an came in with the castor oil, and then back again just before she came in with the next dose to the other side."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

An Elemental Error.

A judge was angling in the Manito-wick waters and just before dinner became involved in an argument with his boat companion. The debate lasted some minutes, and during that time the judge had his baited hook dangling in the air over his shoulder.

PLACING TWO WHALES.

Both of Them For Awhile Were Very Much Out of Place.

The great George Washington, who could not tell a lie or, better, would not if he could, hardly suggests himself as a suitable audience for a fish story of the fishiest type. Nevertheless, it is not likely that any modern fisherman, however small his catch and conscience and however large his imagination, would venture to equal the claim once made by Baron Steuben in his presence. That fine old German soldier, who came over to fight for us in the Revolution, never thoroughly mastered the language, and his occasional slips were the delight of his fellow officers.

Once when dining at Dobbs Ferry with General Washington and his staff the conversation turned on fishing, and the baron averred that a single experience had extinguished all his aspirations to shine as a fisherman. He had fished for three blazing hours on the glaring waters of the North river—one breathless day with the mercury near 100. It was misery, not pleasure, and after all he had caught only two fishes.

"What kind of fish were they?" inquired General Washington.

"I am not sure, but I think one of them was a whale," replied Steuben.

"A whale, baron! In the North river?"

"Yes, I assure you, a very fine whale, was it not?" persisted Baron Steuben, turning for confirmation to the aid who had been his companion.

"An eel, baron," corrected the young officer, laughing.

"I beg your excellency's pardon," said Steuben, undisturbed by the remark that had spread rapidly round the table. "I understood the gentleman it was a whale."

It was not the German baron, but one of our French allies, the Marquis de Chastellux, who in like manner misunderstood his informant after dining at the hospitable board of a Boston merchant. Not the elusive eel, however, or any other fish, but feathered game of a name deceptively similar, led him into the natural error of assuring his hostess, with enthusiasm, that never had he partaken of a more delicious dish than her "whale on toast."—Youth's Companion.

Life.

Life is not made up of great sacrifices or duties, but of little things, of which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually are what win and preserve the heart.

Oh, the Language!

It had been a very thing case for everybody concerned. The plaintiff and the defendant were both countrymen and had had to have everything explained to them at least twice. "Do I understand, my man," said the magistrate at one point, "that the defendant hurled invectives at you?"

The plaintiff scratched his head wildly. Then slowly a look of understanding dawned in his eyes as he replied:

"No, sir. To tell the truth, it was only bricks as he threw at me. But wot I complains about was the terrible way he swore at me when they missed."—London Answers.

Faithful to His Promise.

One of the recruiting canvassers in an English provincial town is a well known magistrate. In most cases he succeeds in gaining a new soldier for the army. One day, however, he got a surprise. He knocked at a cottage door, which was opened to him by a sturdy son of the soil.

"My man," said the magistrate in his most persuasive tones, "are you willing to fight for your king and country?"

"No, I beant, sir," was the prompt reply of the farmer as he shook his finger in the magistrate's face. "An' I be surprised at you askin' me for to do it. Two years ago next month you yourself fined I 20 shillings for fighting w' Bill Smith, and you said it wot wicked to fight, an' I promised you as I wouldn't repeat the offense an' alius kept my word."

Welcome.

The mother of the family stood in the reception hall with her eyes fixed on the applicant for a position.

"Why were you discharged from your last place?" she asked.

"Because I sometimes forgot to wash the children, mum."

"Oh, mother," came in chorus from the children hanging over the stairs, "please engage her!"—Household Words.

He Could Remember.

"Before we were married," sobbed Angelina, "did you not always call me your little drop of cream?"

"Well, you know," answered Harold, "cream turns sour if you keep it long enough. I was a fool when I married you."

"And didn't you tell me you had plenty of money before you?" asked Angelina.

"That was correct. I lived in front of a bank," the wily Harold replied.

"And you never take me out now," said the wee wifie.

"Not since you took me in" was Harold's cold rejoinder. "I used to enjoy single life, but now I'm that miserable I don't know myself until I feel in my empty pockets. Then it's easy to remember who's in!"

Gems In Verse

TO BE A LINCOLN.

WHO'D be a Lincoln must be great of soul. Calm, strong and patient, with a loving heart; With wide down vision to embrace the whole, Not rest too long upon a petty part.

A NATION'S leader, with a people rent in factions bitter and by hatred stirred, Can be like him, our martyred president, Only if deeds shall march behind his word.

HE waited, Lincoln, till the time was born When was well that he should strike his blow; He faced contumely and he endured scorn, But neither went too fast nor went too slow.

WHO'D be a Lincoln must both speak and act; His hand must do what tongue has left undone; A Lincoln with his soul must make a pact To gain from force what kindness has not won.

—Edward S. Van Zile.

HONEST ABE.

HONEST Abe was a simple man, A simple man and rare. His mind was a true diving rod, He marched straight on and he loved with God. Loving the soil on which he trod And mankind everywhere.

Honest Abe was a loyal man, A loyal man and true. His eyes shone bright with righteous light, He marched straight off in the darkest night, Chearing the weak with his words of might, Giving each one his due.

Honest Abe was a noble man, A man of the helping hand. His soul was filled with freedom's song, It sounded clear as he marched along Seeking the way to right a wrong Heavy upon the land.

And Honest Abe was a working man, Born of a lowly name. By the cabin door that gave him birth He learned the labor of the earth, While he marched straight on to take his worth Into the halls of power.

—Thomas Tapper.

PAYING THE PRICE.

WE are always paying the price for the things we lose or gain. Out of this life of the mingled gift of gladness and of pain, And whether we pay for pleasure or whether we pay for sin, It is always paying the price for life, no matter where we begin.

We say we have had a lot we've enjoyed And we've shared in the best; We sit sometimes with a little dream of old content in the breast; And then when we look away and think of the things that were nice

It all comes over us, lucky or sad, that we've had to pay the price.

The magnate pays it for his, as the pauper pays it, too; And the saint pays just as the sinner does and the unsaved have to do; In all that we have and hold or in all that we've thrown away, It is sure in the end to come to this, that there was a price to pay.

We pay it for love and peace, for cheer and comfort and song; We pay for singing and going astray, we pay it for doing wrong; In all that we are or seem, in gladness or grief or pain, We are always paying the price for the things that we lose or gain.

—Folger McKinsey.

THE CLOSED DOOR.

I NEVER crossed your threshold with a grief But that I went without it; never came Heart hungry, but you fed me, eased the blame, And gave the sorrow solace and relief.

I never left you but I took away The love that drew me to your side again; Through that wide door that never could remain Quite closed between us for a little day.

Oh, friend, who gave and comforted, who knew So overwell the want of heart and mind; Wouldst not repeat the offense an' alius kept my word."

Be it for fault, folly or for sin, Oh, terrible my penance and most sore To face the tragedy of that closed door Whereby I pass and may not enter in! —Theodosia Garrison.

TROUBLE THAT NEVER CAME.

O H, I worry over this thing and I worry over that, But I notice when the atmosphere has cleared That the bad luck I had looked for didn't come and knock me flat.

And I didn't have the trouble that I feared.

Oh, I like to start the morning with an apprehensive sigh, For I find a bit of worry to my taste, But I cannot help thinking as the years go speeding by That an awful lot of worry goes to waste.

—Pittsburgh Post.

IF on this bitter north of frost I can remember May, New green to green and underbrush, A hillside orchard's mounting flush, The scent of earth and noon's blue hush, A robin's jaunty way.

CAUTION! The new-day advances that come along on this machine are all controlled by Oliver. Even our own previous models—famous in their day—never had the Optional Duplex Shift.

It puts the whole control of 84 letters and characters in the little fingers of the right and left hands. And it lets you write them all with only 28 keys, the least to operate of any standard typewriter made.

Thus writers of all other machines can immediately run the Oliver Number 9 with more speed and greater ease.

WARNING! This brilliant new Oliver comes at the old-time price. It costs no more than lesser makes—now out of date when compared with this new discovery.

For while the Oliver's splendid new features are costly—we have equalized the added expense to us by simplifying construction.

Resolve right now to see this great achievement before you spend a dollar for any typewriter. If you are using some other make you will want to see how much more this one does.

If you are using an Oliver, it naturally follows that you want the finest model.

17 CENTS A DAY!

Remember this brand-new Oliver "9" is the greatest value ever given in a type writer. It has all our previous special inventions—visible writing, automatic spacer 6 1/2-ounce tank—plus the Optional Duplex Shift, Selective Color Attachment and these other new-day features.

Yet we have decided to sell it to everyone everywhere on our famous payment plan—17 cents a day! Now every user can easily afford to have the world's crack visible writer, with the famous PRINTYPE, that writes like print, included FREE in the deal.

AMERICA might be said to be in this war but not of it.

MEAT has risen in price as rapidly as have vegetables, thus giving vegetarians cause annoyance.

GERMANY may be hitting below the belt, but apparently there is nobody left to enforce the rules.

THOUGH the rest of the world may be gloomy, the cravats in the store windows are tumultuously gay.

If congress did not waste so much time in its regular sessions extra sessions would not be necessary.

Why Prices Go Up.

War is waste. Great European nations are now well along in their third year of unparalleled destruction of the accumulated fruits of the world's labor. They go lolling against the American people in the American people's own market or all kinds of useful products, getting in return for those products not much of anything except money.

BEATS HIS ALARM CLOCK TO IT NOW

Pressman Jumps Out of Bed With Old Time Vigor.

TANLAC GAVE HIM NEW ENERGY

When the alarm clock rang this morning did you bound out of bed, eat a good breakfast and leave "fit" and ready for your work?

Not if you felt like Edward E. Schwandt, pressman, 3200 Tampa avenue.

EDWARD E. SCHWANDT.

nue, Cleveland, used to feel. Here is the story in his own words:

"The last year was a trying one for me. My health had been steadily on the down grade. Often it would be 1 or 2 o'clock before I could go to sleep. I got up in the morning almost as tired as when I went to bed. "During the day my stomach bothered me. After eating I had a heavy, bloated feeling. I was tired all the time and didn't have any ambition. My nerves were upset. My body ached. At times my feet were so sore I could hardly bear my weight upon them. "I couldn't get relief. Finally I tried Tanlac and right then and there I began to get better. My worries are all over now. I go to bed and never wake up until morning. My aches have left me. I have a splendid appetite and am able to satisfy it, too,—no food disagrees with my stomach. "I am glad to say a good word for Tanlac and honestly believe that it will do for other people what it has done for me."

Tanlac now may be obtained in Greenville at G. E. Countzler's drug store where it is being personally introduced and explained.

Tanlac may also be obtained at the following near by towns:

Central City, Woodburn-McDowell; Cleaton, Willis & Hall; Bevier, L. O. Yokley; Drakesboro, W. W. Bridges; Browder, J. D. Longest; Vost, Hershel Pogue; Dunmore, Dallas Rector; Nelson, Nelson Creek Coal Co.; South Carrollton, M. G. Wheelton; Bremen, E. G. Shaver; Lynn City, Whalin & Martin; Paradise, Henry F. Cundiff; Rochester, E. W. Tipton; White Plains, Dr. Bailey; Nortonville, City Drug Store; Island, A. R. Pollock; Livermore, J. F. Smith; Depoy, Shannon Mercer Co.; Ennis, T. C. Hardison; Bancroft, C. B. Pittman; Graham, Chas. E. Bourland.

You cannot eat money or wear money. Therefore certain excited thousands of women and men in New York city have been roiling over the high prices of shoes and cabbages, of bread and beefsteak. They are not consciously roiling over the continued importation of gold, though while they are on their way to market to buy cabbages and shoes and shoes their money is being cheapened by the growing volume of yellow metal stacked up in this country.

Congestion on the railroad which prevents the glutted grain elevators of Chicago from emptying their stores of foodstuffs for the benefit of consumer has contributed in no inconsiderable degree to the skyrocketing of prices. The railroads are congested with American products bound for European markets.

The waste produced by war is at the bottom of the growing distress in American cities. Dealers who take advantage of the general shortage to mark up prices to an exorbitant degree are the greedy camp followers of that haughty conqueror, General Starvation.

Money expressed in terms of cabbages and shoes not only has become extraordinarily cheap but its value is still going down.

F. N. Martin, who for fifteen years conducted a highly satisfactory tailoring business in this city, is down to business again and solicits the citizens' patronage. All kinds of work guaranteed. Join his pressing Illiteracy To Be Removed From Kentucky In Three Years.

Kentucky has three years in which to remove her illiteracy if the slogan, "No illiteracy in Kentucky in 1920" is realized. If other counties worked like Clay and Leslie and Cumberland, for instance, there would be no illiteracy in the state in 1918. In these three counties 1,967 persons learned to read and write in 1916. In a number of counties as many as one hundred were taught and in some fifty men and women learned to read and write. During this winter, many citizens are teaching, some doctors are teaching, some bankers, some lawyers and judges, some women and even children are teaching one to read and write. A woman of Versailles has taught seven in her home. A little girl in Winchester has taught four colored illiterates. The President of the Illiteracy Commission, Mrs. Stewart, while directing the State-wide campaign with its heavy duties, has taught one herself, since November. The Federation of Women's Clubs plans to teach ten thousand this winter and spring by each teaching one.

This is Kentucky's great work. It originated in Kentucky and the eradication of illiteracy will be to the lasting glory of Kentucky. But, better than this it opens up to men and women the world of books. Have you taught one yet in Kentucky's campaign against illiteracy?

New Organization With Headquarters At Madisonville.

An organization, known as the West Kentucky Conservation, has located in Madisonville with offices over Madisonville Savings Bank, with Mr. C. E. Reed, of Chicago, as secretary in charge.

The object of the association is as follows:

To effect economies in the cost of production and distribution of coal, and standing and to standardize, as far as possible, the cost accounting. To conserve the deposits of coal in the territory embraced by the counties of Ohio, Muhlenberg, Hopkins, Webster, Union and Christian, by increasing the yield per acre to the maximum, and to open new markets for coal from these counties, where possible.

To co-operate with the labor to the end that labor may receive a fair wage, reasonable hours and sanitary working conditions, including the promotion of all proper movements having in view the safety and welfare of the men employed in the mines.

The information to be compiled and distributed from this office will be of purely statistical nature, pertaining only to past and closed transactions; no part of the machinery of this association permitted to be used to limit or control competition; to divide territory; nor to fix prices for the sale of coal.—Madisonville Hustler.

Mother of Muhlenbergers Dies In Indiana.

Mrs. Aldea A. Hills, aged 76 years, died last Wednesday at her home in Adeyville, Ind. She was the mother of Messrs. Alvin L., Geo. W., Andrew J., and John H. Taylor, and Mrs. Clara F. Aders, who live in this city. She was a devout member of the Christian church, and a woman loved by all who knew her.

Popular Young Man Dies.

Frank Lovell, in his 34th. year, died at the home of his sister, Mrs. N. E. Lyon, on Cherry street, last Friday afternoon, of heart trouble, which had confined him to his room for several weeks. The announcement caused the deepest sorrow, for there was not a more loved man in the town. Until a short while before his death, his condition was not considered critical, though it was realized he was in a serious state. His cheerfulness was one of his many fine traits, and he maintained that to the end. Nobody knew Frank Lovell but to love and admire him. His life was on high lines, and he inspired and bettered all who came in contact with him. Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at 2 30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, conducted by Revs. Powell and McLean, and the building would not contain the friends who gathered to pay him homage. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery beside his father and mother, Joseph J. and Ruth Pittman Lovell. Peace to his ashes.

Mr. Mack Dukes, who lives near Weir, lost his home and contents by fire last Thursday. Only a few articles were gotten out of the building and his loss is heavy, only a small amount of insurance being carried. A defective flue is supposed to have started the blaze.

Messrs. John T. Reynolds, S. C. Eaves, J. A. Gilman, C. M. Howard Chas. W. Roark, T. J. Sparks and J. F. Long are in Frankfort attending the meeting held to fix the route of the Central Highway, from east to west through the State.

Mr. J. H. Moore, county farm agent has contracted through the State Agricultural department for 135 settings of White Wyandotte eggs, to be distributed to the farmers of the county through Cohen Bros. at 85 cents per setting, which is about one-third the price of pure bred eggs. There will be special efforts made to get raisers to get pure-bred stock, and it would mean a vast increase in money from this important industry.

John W. Newman For Sheriff.

In this paper will be found the announcement of Mr. John W. Newman, who seeks the Republican nomination for Sheriff, and between now and the August primary he will make an active canvass among the voters of the county. This is his first venture in politics for himself, though he has always been active for the party's standard bearers. He is from the southern section of the county, where candidates have been few, and his host of warm friends in that section are especially strong in his behalf. John Newman is a clean, capable man, has the many qualities needed for the important office he seeks, and if the party favors him in the primary he will do his full share to carry the party to victory.

Boy Lost For a Night.

A three-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Taylor, who live near Cave Spring, wandered from home Monday afternoon, and a crowd of about thirty men and boys hunted for him all night, without success. Early next morning Mr. Will Parham discovered the boy at his barn. The child had been out all night, but was apparently not the worse for his exposure. He said he had slept in the grass.

'Squire Cisney For Assessor.

Mr. C. W. Cisney, of Rosewood, announces his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Assessor. He is widely known throughout the county, and is universally popular. He has served the county as magistrate, and his record will aid him greatly, for he was a progressive officer, and stood for the best interests of all the people. His nomination would add strength to the ticket, and the office would have proper attention at his hands.

Esq. H. C. McCracken is again out, after an attack of the grip which confined him to his home for several days.

Mr. Aubrey Wilkerson, a prominent merchant at Graham, died at his home Thursday night of a complication of troubles of only a few days duration. He is survived by his wife. The body was shipped to his old home at Morton's Gap, and interment was made there Saturday afternoon.

Plans For School Ground Improvement.

The teachers, pupils and trustees are all at work on a plan to beautify the college campus. Grass seed will be sown, trees and flowers planted, tennis courts laid off, playgrounds provided, and there will be swing, bars, rings and various things for exercise and amusement. It is likely that some substantial private subscriptions will be secured, as this is a worthy movement, and should be given hearty support.

THE RECORD starts such a fund with a $5.00 subscription, and will be glad to have others take stock in this health giving and general betterment movement.

Prominent Farmer Dies Monday.

Mr. Wm. H. Luckett, 73 years old, died of acute nephritis at his home near Depoy at 6 o'clock last Monday evening, following a short illness. He was well known throughout the county, was a prosperous farmer, and is widely connected, his family long being identified in the affairs of Muhlenberg. He was never married. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Russell at the home Tuesday afternoon, and interment was made in the private graveyard on the farm.

Sherman K. Hayes Wants to be Assessor.

Mr. Sherman K. Hayes announces his candidacy for Assessor in this issue. He is a young man and progressive citizen, his political record is clean, and he has never sought any favor at the hands of his party. His candidacy is being favorably received in all quarters, and nobody would make a better official.

More Live Stock.

Agriculture is the great primary business of the human race. Without it the world would perish. Were the farm lands to lock up their few remaining supplies and refuse to be longer abused by our blundersome methods, a condition far exceeding all powers of human imagination would doubtless follow.

The most lasting form of wealth is real estate. The most useful of all real estate is the land adapted for farming. It therefore becomes our duty to preserve, in so far as we are able, the fertility of these soils. For several decades we have labored along under unsafe systems, hardly realizing the utter devastation and poverty that would eventually overtake our once fertile soils. But now in the year 1917 when we come face to face with startling facts and behold the fertile fields of our fathers, as generous of spirit as ever, yet unable to give of their one time bounteous store, then it is we realize the calamity which has befallen us and we begin to seek methods whereby we may be able to correct the mistakes of those who have gone before. In a mad effort to regain our hold we have started a slogan over our entire nation resulting in a movement known as "back to the land." Sad is it that our citizens interpret it as a call for inhabitants, for in truth, it is merely the cry for the return of the fertility that has been carried away in the corn, wheat, and tobacco we have sold.

Knowing these things to be true we must turn away from this system of ruthless waste, and secure a method whereby our agriculture may become permanent and lasting. Upon such a method we are starting work today and the farmers of Muhlenberg county are becoming interested in the improvement and maintenance of the soil.

We well know that with the expenditure of large sums we would be able to place in the soil enough plant food to again claim for it qualities, which at the present time, it does not possess. But those of us who have been farming these unproduct-ive fields for years are limited in our operations and such a method is far beyond our greatest possibilities. To find and employ some economical and profitable means is our only hope, and though it may be a surprising fact such a means, if we will but accept it, is within easy reach of every farmer in the county.

No farming people have ever been able economically to maintain the fertility of the soil without the use of livestock. Farming without the use of manures is a waste of energy and can only result in failure. Some light may be thrown on the cause of our present conditions when we learn that in the county on 2,686 farms there are only 3,801 cows. Manure is the best means of improving the condition of the soil and the importance of carefully preserving it for use upon cultivated fields can not be too strongly emphasized. Then if such is the case it is at once necessary for the farmer to keep more live stock. To raise and feed beef cattle has been found unprofitable on a good many farms due to various reasons, but fortunately we have been unable to find a single farm where the dairy cow with proper management has failed to pay. Situated as we are, with two railroads through the county placing us in direct touch with the very best markets, we should be receiving each year large returns from dairy products. Almost every farmer within several miles of a shipping station should be milking a number of cows shipping the cream to the markets and feeding the skim milk to hogs, poultry or young stock.

In a year's time a cow will produce, when bedding is used about 14 1/2 tons of manure. When compared with the present price of fertilizers this is well worth over $30. A 50 bushel crop of corn will take from the soil something near $15 worth of plant food. In other words one cow will give back to the land all of the fertility, measured in dollars and cents, taken out by a crop of corn yielding 100 bushels. If this same cow is just a plain ordinary cow giving two gallons of milk daily which will test four per cent and the butter fat from this milk will sell for thirty cents per pound, then the farmer is realizing from the cream alone about $60. The skim milk is worth $12 and the calf $10 making the cow's production for the year's time amount to $91 without considering the value of the manure. It will cost about $40 to feed the average cow for a year, leaving a profit of something close to $50.

The work in which we are now engaged is a big work. Too soon we must shake off this mortal coil and depart for the great adventure that lies beyond. While some are busy with the preparation of a monument of stone to mark their last resting place and serve as a memory of their work let us be building fertile farms, and when we come to enter into the bosom of Mother Earth we need have no fear but that a memory will linger, to be held and cherished in the hearts of the generation that will spring up in our wake. The safest way, the most economical way, and without doubt the best way is through live stock. So in addition to our present methods let us begin the work of improvement through more and better cattle and strive to pay to these lands that have given to us our existence something of the debt we owe.

PRODUCING GOOD MILK.

Cleanliness and Proper Feeding Main Essentials in Dairying.

Cows must be healthy and kept clean. The barn should be kept clean, well lighted and ventilated. The barnyard should be kept clean and properly drained. Utensils should be thoroughly washed and scalded or steamed and kept in a clean room.

Cows should be fed good wholesome food and pure water. Milkers and attendants who come in contact with the milk should be healthy and clean.

Cows should not be fed at milking time or immediately before. Dust from feed falls into the milk and contaminates it with germs.

Wipe the udder and side of cow with a damp cloth and milk with clean, dry hands. Use small top milking pail. This helps to keep foreign matter from the milk.

GOOD DAIRY COW—HOLSTEIN TYPE.

Immediately after milking remove the milk to a separate room from the barn to be strained and cooled. Cool the milk to as low a temperature as possible without freezing. Forty or 50 degrees F. retards growth of most germs and particularly those that cause milk to sour quickly.

In summer keep flies out of the barn and milk room. One fly may carry as many as 150,000 germs to the milk. These may be disease germs. Manure should not be allowed to accumulate around the barn. It is a breeding place for flies.

The number of bacteria in milk depends largely upon cleanliness of milking and handling, temperature at which milk is kept and age of milk. Therefore clean milk, quick cooling and prompt delivery are very important factors in producing pure dairy products.

Lime is a good disinfectant and should be used liberally in the dairy barn.—V. R. Jones, Dairy Husbandry Department, South Dakota State College.

SHELTER FOR SHEEP.

Plans for a Barn Should Include Dry Floors and Abundance of Air.

It is impossible to suggest any very definite sheep barn plans without knowing under just what conditions the barn is to be built. In planning barns or sheds for a breeding flock of sheep a space of ten or twelve square feet per ewe will give sufficient room. The essentials of shelter for sheep are: (1) dry floor, (2) good roof, (3) an abundance of fresh air, (4) avoid drafts, (5) avoid narrow doors and passages so a ewe heavy with lamb will not be injured, and (6) provide sufficient feeding trough space so all the sheep can eat at the same time.

We find that a shed twenty-five or thirty feet wide and as long as necessary to house the flock gives very good results at the Missouri agricultural experiment station. It should be open on the south and may be built with a feed trough and feed alley along the north side. Economy of rack space may be secured by the use of movable racks so arranged as to make as many lots as are needed in the shed. These partition racks can be moved out of the way whenever a wagon is driven in to be loaded with manure. The shed should be high enough to afford plenty of loft room. As we feed baled hay, a loft five feet high at the eaves gives us room enough to store a winter supply for the flock, but if loose hay is put in and fed correspondingly more loft room must be provided.—Professor H. Hackel.

Study of Beet Roots.

Ten years' patient watching and study indicate that difference in size, total sugar content and percentage of sugar of beet roots furnish no evidence of inheritance and that there is no correlation between percentage or quantity of sugar of roots of ordinary sizes and their yield of seed, nor between their yield of seed and percentage of sugar in progeny. The conclusion reached is that the fluctuation in the percentage and yield of sugar may be now regarded as due to soil conditions, both as to natural formations and cultivation of fertilizer methods practiced.

Green Feed For Hens.

Hens need some green food in winter if they are to lay well. Mangels, carrots and cabbage are good. Hang them up so that the hens can just reach them nicely. Sprouted oats are also good. Alfalfa and clover leaves can be soaked up and fed to good advantage.

Tree Planting.

Trees should not be shipped during the winter, as there is danger of freezing, but if there is a nursery near you trees may be bought and planted any time during the winter that the ground is dry enough. Fall or spring is best.

SYSTEM OF TILE-DRAINAGE

Good Plan to Make Little Map of Fields Drained—Stakes Driven Down Are Good Thing.

After putting down a system of tile drains on a farm, it is a good plan to make a little map of the fields drained showing just where each line is.

Then, too, stakes driven down are a good thing. You may want to extend the lines by and by.

The Scrap Book

A Flying Start.

On the Frankford-Hadaway farm near Coal Mines stop on the Youngstown and Southern suburban electric line is a pugnacious male sheep whose headwork is wonderful.

Billy doesn't use his head for his own advantage as much as he does to boost others along.

One afternoon not long since a youth who lives in the vicinity left the car at Midway station and was walking quietly across the field when he felt a terrific attack from the rear that lifted him completely off his feet and advanced him a yard or so before he recovered his balance.

Turning and recognizing Billy as his assailant, the young man started to sprint. Pursued and pursued made a streak through the atmosphere until the youth, some yards in the lead, cleared the pasture gate with a single bound.

A farmer who happened to be passing said to the young man:

"I must say you are some runner." "Huh!" grinned the youth. "You oughta seen the start I got."—Youngstown Telegram.

The Good Neighbor.

He who sows strife between thee and thy neighbor—think! Poisons the common well from which ye both do drink.

Not all good neighbors who do not work thee ill.

But he who, vexed by thee, remains thy neighbor still.

—Wisdom of the Brahman.

No Grounds.

"My wife played a great trick on a gypsy the other day."

The fat plumber was the speaker.

"What did she do?" asked the thin carpenter.

"The gypsy wanted to tell her fortune with some coffee grounds."

"Yes."

"And after she was through my wife asked her if the coffee grounds possessed some peculiar charms for fortune telling."

"What did the gypsy say?"

"She said they did."

"Then what?"

"Then my wife gave her the laugh and refused to pay her."

"Why?"

"Because the sediment in the cup wasn't coffee grounds at all. We use a substitute."—Youngstown Telegram.

She Looked Funny to Him.

"That woman who just went out as you came in, Silas, is a well meaning little creature, but she has less sense of humor than any of my sex I know."

"Why, Samanthay, I thought just the other way. If she lacked the quality you mention she wouldn't dress as she does."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Discredited Denial.

"Who signed the Magna Charta?"

Thus roared the school inspector thunderously. The class sat mute. "Who signed Magna Charta?" roared the inspector again.

"Please, sir," wailed a small boy named O'Brien, "it wasn't me."

The inspector snorted.

"The class is the most ignorant it has been my lot to examine."

He strode from the room and outside met the schoolmistress.

Angry he narrated the incident.

"Who do you say did that, sir?" queried the teacher.

"William O'Brien!" snorted the inspector.

"Bill O'Brien?" repeated the schoolmistress. "Then don't you believe him, sir. He's the biggest liar here, take my word for it."—London Telegraph.

Plenty of Words.

"What's the trouble between you and your husband now?"

"He buys too many things he can't afford. Wants to buy a new dictionary now. It contains 200,000 words."

"Yes?"

"And I guess we've had that may about it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Which One?

Phoebe was bored in all the six long years of her life she had never spent such a miserable day. Circumstances at last grew too strong for her, and she cried. She was one of those who do not often cry, but who when they do make no secret of it. In short, Phoebe nearly lifted the nursery ceiling off.

Upspring came Phoebe's mother, already dressed in her smartest clothes ready to have tea with a friend.

"Why, what's the matter, Phoebe?" she asked.

Phoebe, standing hopelessly in the middle of the nursery, only bowed the longer and refused to see anything cheerful about life.

Lifting the unhappy child up in her arms and cuddling the tear stained little face against her own, the mother walked over to the looking glass.

"Just look, Phoebe, at that ugly little face in the looking glass!"

Phoebe immediately became interested and stopped crying.

"Which one, mother?" she asked.

Shape for Country Roads.

Country roads should be kept in such condition that they will shed every drop of water that falls on them.

Reasonable Proposition.

A good road between every farm and market is a reasonable and worthwhile proposition.

Muddy Roads Cut Profits.

Muddy roads always add to the distance to market and cut the profits on produce.

MANURE WHEAT IN WINTER

In order to add the growth of the crop and thus save some spring fertilizers and to prevent losses of manure through exposure the Ohio station recommends winter manuring for wheat.

For twenty-three years at the station eight tons of manure applied directly to wheat before seeding have produced an annual increase of 12.6 bushels in this crop alone.

A reasonable proportion of this increase may be expected even when the manure is applied during the winter, while subsequent crops will show like increases.

Experiments at Wooster show that a ton of manure spread directly from the stable to the field is worth 75 cents more than a ton left in an open barnyard for three winter months and then applied. Other experiments have shown that a ton of fresh manure treated with forty pounds of acid phosphate and spread immediately is worth nearly $2.50 more than a ton of untreated manure left in an open barnyard from January to April.

PORK RAISING PAYS.

Success Depends Largely on Good Hogs and Right Feeding.

Is the problem of making pork at a profit any greater now that grain feeds are high? Have we not a corresponding rise in the values of the product so that we are just as well off? Let us not overlook the fact that only good hogs pay at any time, says the Farm Journal.

Poor swine, poorly kept or wormy, are a losing proposition under all conditions of the market.

In keeping first quality hogs, especially pure breeds, there is always the additional inducement of occasional sales at good prices to breeders. But in feeding there is a right way that should not be forgotten. If you have skim milk or buttermilk or are near a creamery where these may be procured at a cost of 40 cents per hundred or less it will add quality to the ration and do it profitably.

Skim milk is among the foremost feeds as a grower of young stock, while it has few equals as a fattener when fed with corn.

in keeping first quality hogs, especially pure breeds, there is always the additional inducement of occasional sales at good prices to breeders. But in feeding there is a right way that should not be forgotten. If you have skim milk or buttermilk or are near a creamery where these may be procured at a cost of 40 cents per hundred or less it will add quality to the ration and do it profitably.

Skim milk is among the foremost feeds as a grower of young stock, while it has few equals as a fattener when fed with corn.

GREENVILLE, KENTUCKY

A History of Muhlenberg County

BY OTTO A. ROTHERT

THIS book tells of the wilderness conquered, and of the adventures of the men and women who founded and developed the county up to and since the beginning of the railroad era, and made possible the achievements of to-day. It is the story of the county from the standpoint of its personal and public traditions, which have been arranged in related groups and form an almost continuous narrative.

It was published in 1913. Competent judges have pronounced it the best county history ever published in the United States. The Courier-Journal says, "The book is worthy of study, not only for the pictures it gives of early times and early society, but for the wealth of its curious and valuable illustrations and its expositions of the industrial and social progress of the county and its towns." The Western Recorder says, "It is more interesting than a good novel; it will interest old and young alike." The Greenville Record says, "Every Muhlenberger and former citizen of the county will value the book far above the price at which it is offered." The American Historical Review says, "The book not only contains much that is of interest to the student of Kentucky history but is written in a pleasing style."

It is a labor of love offered at cost of production, the author's time and work being contributed. The book contains 500 pages, 240 excellent illustrations and a complete index. It is printed on a superior quality of paper and is handsomely bound in dark red cloth.

AROUND THE FARM.

Packing apples attractively helps to sell them for more money.

Lime-sulphur spray gets peach leaf curl. Apply in fall or winter or any time the leaves are off.

Shrubs that attract birds by their fruit are worth planting around the farm home.

Painting farm implements and vehicles is a good job for winter. Of course they are all under cover.

Snow is said to be the poor man's fertilizer, and it is—in the sense that any man who depends on it is bound to be poor.

Systems of drains in land that has been tilled, but that was more or less wet, have usually paid for themselves in four or five years and often in much less time.

Potted Ox Tongue.

One pound of cold cooked ox tongue, six tablespoonsful of butter or fat from tongue, ground mace, made mustard, one teaspoonful of mushroom catsup, red pepper.

Crop tongue fine and put it in a basin with the butter or the fat from the tongue, if any is left; season to taste. Rub the mixture, after it has been well pounded, through a fine sieve. Press into small pots, cover with clarified butter or lard; keep in a cool place.

You Need a Tonic

There are times in every woman's life when she needs a tonic to help her over the hard places. When that time comes to you, you know what tonic to take—Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which act gently, yet surely, on the weakened womanly organs, and helps build them back to strength and health. It has benefited thousands and thousands of weak, ailing women in its past half century of wonderful success, and it will do the same for you.
